

Laurel County, Crossroads of the Wilderness Road

At the Rockcastle River, the pioneers separated to go to the Wilderness, north to Fort Boonesboro, and on to Ohio, or through Fort Harrod to the Falls (Louisville).

In 2020 We Envision London & Laurel County will be...

...a thriving community that is located at the crossroads of southeastern Kentucky. All major thoroughfares lead into the heart of a distinctive region showcasing rural landscapes. Laurel County is the gateway to the beautiful mountains of Eastern Kentucky. Whether it is to work or play, London-Laurel County offers a multitude of opportunity. The Daniel Boone National Forest, Levi Jackson State Park, Wood Creek Lake, Lake Cumberland, and Laurel Lake provide recreation and outdoor activities. The active City of London is a regional center for medical, educational, retail and government services. The booming, diversified industry and business community continually advances to remain at the cutting edge of commerce. The people of London-Laurel County take pride in their friendly reputation and hometown feeling that is embraced by those who live here and by those who are visiting.

The superior quality of life offered in London-Laurel County is upheld by maintaining high standards for planning and preserving our region. We encourage progress while protecting the natural beauty that surrounds us, as well as respecting the people that make this region so exceptional.
